The wireless IPN W880 headset was specially developed for intensive use in and around the workstation. The extra battery compartment in the headset base station (called the hotswap function) means that your cordless headset is always ready for use. The battery can be replaced and charged even while a call is being made.

- DECT wireless headset solution
- Integrated battery compartment in the headset base station
- Supplied with two wearing options: headband and earhook
- 6.5 hours of talk time per battery
- Range up to 400m

The external port for an electronic hookswitch, featured as standard, means that telephone calls can be answered and ended remotely. Making and receiving calls is no problem at all, even in busy office environments. This is because the noise cancelling technology built into the microphone ensures that background noise is kept to a minimum.
